DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3, 5-7 and 10 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yablonowski et al. (US 6,535,859) in view of Hochstein (US 5,783,909).

Yablonowski et al. (Hereinafter Yablonowski) teaches a method and system for monitoring lighting systems, comprising:

Claims 1, 5 and 10. Installing a lighting system for a customer (column 1, lines 59-61); measuring characteristics of the installed system (column 1, lines 64-65); determining customer usage fee based on said measurement (column 1, line 66 – column 2, line 2).

Yablonowski does not specifically teach that said lighting system includes at least one LED, and a sensor for measuring lumens generated from said system.

Hochstein teaches a method and system for maintaining led luminous intensity, comprising a LED, a sensor for sensing changes in luminous output and a control circuit (column 3, lines 24-32).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Yablonowski to include that said lighting system includes at least one LED, and a sensor for measuring lumens generated from said system, because LED devices are more efficient than conventional light-emitting devices, and last longer.

Claims 2 and 6. See claim 1.

Claims 3 and 7. See claim 1.

Claims 4, 8-9 and 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yablonowski and Hochstein in view of Che et al. (US 5,636,303).

Claims 4, 8-9 and 11-13. Yablonowski and Hochstein teach all the limitations of claims 4, 8-9 and 11-13, except specifically teaching that a customer can control the lighting system via an input device.

Che et al. (Hereinafter Che) teaches a method and system for controlling a chromatically variable light source, wherein a user can control wavelengths of LED via a input unit (14) (column 2, lines 63-66).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Yablonowski and Hochstein to include that a customer can control the lighting system via an input device, because it would allow the customer to adjust the spectrum of LED in accordance with his mood, thereby make the system interactive and more attractive to the customer.
